
HISTORY

The COIL CDC was established in July 2001 by COIL. The purpose of the COIL CDC is to develop affordable housing for people with disabilities, and the purpose of COIL is to provide services and support systems to people with disabilities.

The missions of the organizations are different, but both share a common vision that self-sufficiency and independence are sought and earned by people with disabilities, not granted by society.

The power of self esteem and its impact on the quality of life is immeasurable, but worthy of a viable mission. A viable mission that will facilitate change and provide equal opportunity to housing, education, and employment.
